In another column will be found short but interesting sketch of the life of James Gordon Bennett, the founder and proprietor of the New York Herald. who died at his house on Saturday afternoon last. For many years after his arrival in this country, Mr. Bennett struggled on in poverty and obscurity, but after the establishment of the Herald his indefatigable energy in procuring the latest news from every portion of the world soon rose both for himself and his paper a foremost position. Mr. Ben nett always gave his whole soul and force to the advancement of the Herald, and as a result has died in the ripene of old age, leaving one of the most pros perous and profitable newspaper proper ties in the United States.

Or course the great political event of the week has been the Philadelphia Convention, although the especial interconvention, although the especial interest of uncertainty as to its results was wanting, except so far as the nomination for Vice-President was concerned.

The variable of murder in the first degree against John Barclay for killing Charles F. Garner, on November 28th by striking him in the head four tion for Vice-President was concerned. But even this has now been settled, and times with a hammer, near Columdus. Motion has been made for a new trial. the second leading ticket of the cam-paign comes to us with U. S. Grant for Scott of that place, with his son and four paign comes to us with U. S. Grant for President, and Henry Wilson for Vice-President. To many the defeat of Colfax may have been unexpected, but perhaps was no more than might have been looked for after his positive refusal to allow his name to go before the Convention. What may be the result of this change is a more interesting problem than the causes that led to it. The general impression, however, seems to be that the party gains additional strength that the party gains additional strength by the substitution. The Bemocratic National Convention now alone remains as the point around which all speculation and interest must center until after the 9th of July, as upon its action the 9th of July, as upon its action must depend in a great measure the future political status of the country. We are told that the nominations of Grant and Wilson were received with the most enthusiastic cheering and singing and waving of every available article to express the general joy and approbation of the Convention. From the key-note thus sounded we may naturally expect to hear the same refrain echoed from one Administration paper to another until the suspleion may arise with some that it is a parallel case to that of the boy who whistled to keep his courage to the state of Ohio, as boy who whistled to keep his courage the companies in the state of Ohio, as many of the companies have for various were flooded, and in several instances of the interior decorations could not were flooded, and in several instances of the companies are to the companies of the compan

What effect it is designed to produce, under existing circumstances, it is difficult to tell. In the evening Mr. Schurz addressed the Senate. He said he intended however, we have in our possession data Taylor, and in which Mr. Paul Wick has can be raised, rather than with those in we have at last obtained possession of the facts and evidence to explain to the entire satisfaction of the public the plans and schemes which have so long been kept back, and we hope to be able to get them into shape to present to our readers by our next issue. readers by our next issue.

Rarely in the political history of thi country has a convention closed with a happier feeling than prevaded all classes of Republicans there. In unanimity, good order, and genuine, heart-felt enthusiasm, the convention, from first to last, has been an ideal event, with Hon. Richard Thompson nominated Mr. Colfax, the cheers being manifestly weaker and fewer than those for Wilson. The nomination was seconded by William A. Howard of Detroit, who gave a brief sketch of Mr. Colfax's life, On the first ballot Colfax received 321½ votes and Wilson 364½. Virginia, at this juncture, changed twenty of her votes from Lewis to Wilson and the remaining two to Colfax. This gave Wilson 384½, and his nomination was assured.

WOOL MARKET. PAINESVILLE, June 7, 1872. Market unchanged. Manufactures are buying only to meet actual want, and holders are not been received. The domestic stock of wool is very light. The new clip of California is moving slowly. Holders are hoping for an advance when the active season begins, Lost! $5.00 Reward. O'N Thursday I lost a memonandum book containing my pension papers, fishery accounts, and other papers valuable to me and to no one clse. The fluder may leave them at the Journal, office, and I will pay a reward of five dellars for their pressurer.

Where are We Now?

Where are we now? I'd really like to know, As through the world we helter skelter go, On life's troubled waters, a curious throng, Where some are sailing right and some go wre in business or in sport we go it blind, Nothing seems to agitate our mind; Where are we now? the politician asks, For everything with him is lovely—while it lasts; He's one of those who understands the ropes, Was almost recorded ambifuo?'s brightest hours; "GOODS WELL BOUGHT Of fraud and perjury perhaps he's king, Perhaps a shining member of the Ring; The crash must come, he to the storm must bo Bewildered then he cries, Where are we now?

Where are we now? our ministers inquire, while preaching endless death and lakes of fir The road to take (in politics) they teach—I wonder if they practice what they preach? In theology profound they loudly roar, But leave us darker minded than before. We would do right, but who is to tell us how, We only want to know, Where are we now?
